With a level of pure elegance that feels rare in the modern world, these natural stone mosaics create an artful finish with fresh new patterns drawn from the rich legacy of ancient Etruscan and Italian Renaissance architecture.

In a twist made possible with waterjet technology, in some patterns, natural stone is deftly combined with touches of immaculately glazed ceramic. This creates a subtle and delightful contrast of materials while allowing for the introduction of pure, solid colors that can't be achieved with stone alone. Look for beloved elemental shapes from the old world: The iconic quatrefoil and fleur de lis, the arc, heart, tulip, leaf and petal, are iterated newly in patterns that harken a lost world of splendor and finesse.

As these classic shapes interlock and weave their way across walls or floors, they become a soothing reminder of the permanence and timelessness of impeccable craft.
